The Barr Family.

June

James

Little Paul

Where are we going again, Dad?

Uncle Sean is out there already.

We're going to AMERICA, son. We want a better life for you.

I'm going to work on the railways and you, my boy are going to go to a proper school.

And we get to go on the BIG boat?

This is only the small boat, son. The Big boat is at Moville, not too far from here!

After what happened to that TITANIC ship I'm not too sure I trust this thing.

Chin up, June. We'll be fine!

Come on. Move it along. We don't have all day!
The Barr family would be on the ship to America for 7 days...

Let's settle in!

Remind me again, son, what this word is. Remember to sound it.

Shh

Sheep!

They would see things that they had never seen before...

And they would experience things they had never experienced before...

The calm...

...and the storm.

They would experience sickness...

Oh, James...

He's burning up!

...And do whatever they could to overcome it.

Are you sure he's wrapped up tight enough?

Trust me.

He'll be well in time. Fresh air will do him the world of good.

Let's settle in!

Sh-eep.
Dad, can I go out and play tomorrow?

Aye son, you can go out and play tomorrow.

Days later...

Can we go and count seagulls again, Dad?

Of course, son.

Days later...

Can we go and count seagulls again, Dad?

Of course, son.

Wow!

Paul...

Go down and get your mammy.

Finally... We’ve arrived!

It’s Amazing...

Gasp!
When they arrived at Ellis Island they knew their new life was just about to begin...

...but first they’d have to wait to get approval to enter the country.

Everyone stay in line!

It’s just a cold, Mr and Mrs Barr.

Your son will be fine...

Welcome to America.

Once they got through the immigration process....

Look up, Dad!

They knew they could face a brighter future...

...in the Big Apple!
